

Art Nouveau

Art Nouveau was an artistic style that reached a peak of popularity at the turn of the twentieth century and is characterised by a highly flowing style inspired by plant and flower motifs. The name 'Art Nouveau' derived from the name of a shop in Paris, at the time run by Siegfried Bling, that showcased objects that followed this approach to design.